

Language Arts Syllabus

English III - Communications and Rhetorical Analysis

Ms. CJ - ccramer@lowell.k12.or.us - Extension 310 -Room 10

Course Overview: English III is designed as an AP Language and Composition prep course. Students who have completed the class are encouraged to attempt the test as Juniors in order to gain experience to college-level assessments. The class focuses on rhetorical analysis and nonfiction, primary documents, but will also incorporate some short fiction and poetry. Students will also read Long Way Gone, Memoirs of a Boy Soldier, and non-fiction memoir by Ishmael Beah.

National History Day: The National History Day competition is a nationally recognized research contest. As part of this course, students will complete a research project that meets the requirements of entry. Although there are many choices of project presentation, each project requires research and analysis of both primary and secondary sources, as well as an explanatory essay focusing on the research process. The best of these projects will be selected for presentation at the state level in Portland, OR in April.

Writing Development: This year, a large focus of Language Arts will be on the art of writing. Students will develop their own writing goals, and a portion of their essay grades will be based on their work toward those goals.

Homework: In high school, homework can be an effective tool to reinforce learning and teach personal management. Initially, homework will consist primarily of work that was begun in class, but not finished due to time, and weekend reading (I provide students with a reading schedule at the beginning of every novel.). Over the course of the year, an increasing amount of reading and active note-taking strategies will be expected to be completed at home.

Additionally, students will sign up for one Current Events Rhetorical Analysis presentation per term. This will need to be completed at home or during study hall.

In-class work will consist of an online journal, reading responses, class discussions, Socratic circles, and essay development.

Grading scale: Grades will be categorized by standards, including Personal Management and Citizenship to recognize effort. Due to the categories available in the gradebook, our standards are labelled with different terms. Here is the key for understanding student grades.

LARGE STANDARD	Gradebook Label (% of grade)	Specific Standard or Requirement
READING	Quizzes (5%)	Key Ideas and Details (Assignments that meet this standard may be classified as either quizzes or tests even when they were in-class assignments or homework.)
	Tests (10%)
	Academic (15%)	Craft and Structure (aka: analysis)
	Projects (15%)	Integration of Knowledge and Ideas
WRITING	Performance (15%)	Text Type and Purpose (Purpose and Organization)
	Lab (15%)	Research (Evidence and Elaboration)
	Effort (10%)	Grammar and Conventions
REAL WORLD SKILLS AND PROFESSIONALISM	Personal Management (10%)	Turning in assignments on time
	Citizenship (5%)	Classroom Citizenship (behavior, promptness, preparedness, respect, etc.)

--	--	------------------------------

Late / Incomplete work policy:

Students are expected to turn their work in on time and put in a good effort. Late work will be accepted, however students will lose points in the Personal Management standard attached to each assignment at 10% per day. Occasionally, a student may turn in an assignment that shows little effort. In this case, it will be returned to the student and accepted as a late assignment when it is completed to a satisfactory level.

Incomplete Quizzes and 0-Scores

The lowest quiz score will be dropped from the student's grade. If the student wishes to re-do a poor quiz for more points, he or she has one week in which to do so for half-credit per additional correct answer.

Academic Integrity:

Students are expected to complete their own work. In the event of cheating, plagiarism, or assignment copying, students involved will receive a zero for the assignment and will be reported to their parent/guardian, and Lowell High School counselor and administrators.

Cell Phones/MP3 Players/etc..

Unless otherwise specified, the use of handheld electronic devices is not allowed during class time. Phones must remain off and placed either in the attendance poster or in students' backpacks for the duration of the period. During certain work times, students may be permitted to listen to music. However, any further use or abuse of electronic use may result in the entire class losing the privilege.